International Conference on

Geothermal and Other Energy Resources of Ladakh:
Technological and Business Viability

5-7 July 2010 + field trip to Puga hot springs (8-10 July, 2010)

Venue: Leh, Ladakh (India)

Puga Valley Geothermal Field, Ladakh

Hot water jet from a bore hole in Puga Valley

Conference themes:

- * Energy resource opportunities and environmental concerns (connecting local with global);
- * potential to generate energy from a sustainable mix of sources: hydrocarbons, wind, solar, geothermal, hydro and biomass;
- * Regional energy scenario in the context of conservation and environmental concerns;
- * Technological and business viability of innovative energy options and
- * Investment opportunities in energy exploration and development with focus on Ladakh and the adjacent Himalayan terrain.

Who should attend: scientists, teachers, conservationists, environmentalists, technologists, administrators and investors

The conference draws upon the success of a national energy efficiency education and outreach program by the University of Jammu, University College London and Eni-India/Milan (2008-2009)

Full conference details, abstract / manuscript submission, registration, accommodation, etc. online at
